

1 ID and Fort Riley Monthly News Update

Relief for Military Homeowners

The Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) announced military homeowners with Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac loans who receive Permanent Change of Station (PCS) orders will be eligible to sell their homes in a short sale, even if they are current on their mortgage. Previously, many military families felt their only options were to maintain financial obligations on two residences, or to default on their mortgage. Under the new policy, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac will not pursue a deficiency judgment or any cash contribution or promissory note from service members with PCS orders for any property purchased on or before June 30, 2012.

Service members with PCS orders will be:

- Eligible for a short sale immediately, even when they are current on their existing mortgage (the PCS order is treated as a hardship to deem them eligible);
- Exempt from deficiency judgments from Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac when receiving permission for a short sale; and
- Relieved of any request or requirement for a cash contribution or promissory note so long as the property was purchased on or before June 30, 2012.

PCS orders often require quick moves and can create hardship for military homeowners who are underwater on their mortgages and therefore cannot sell their home without taking a loss. Military families were faced with tough situations such as living in separate homes or the risk of losing the service member's security clearance.

Last year Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac issued guidance to mortgage servicers confirming PCS orders as a qualifying hardship for forbearance and loan modifications.

Service members can check the Fannie Mae or the Freddie Mac websites to see if their loans are held by them or they can call hotlines for military homeowners at 1-877-MIL-4566 or 1-800-FREDDIE.

Army Involuntary Early Separations Grow

See pages 9 & 10 for more calendar updates.

The Army is expanding its Enlisted Involuntary Early Separation Program for some Soldiers. Under the program, enlisted Soldiers who elect to not re-enlist or extend in order to deploy with their unit, could be subject to involuntary early separation. The program affects Soldiers who have more than three years active duty service, but less than six years total of service. Officers are not affected. Soldiers who are separated involuntarily from the Army will retain Veterans Administration benefits. They may also opt to join one of the Reserve components. Two documents online that explain more about the Enlisted Involuntary Early Separation Program are the 142/2012 ALARACT located by going to: <http://bit.ly/KJo2en> or MILPER 12-165 found at: <http://1.usa.gov/LbAP9v>

Summer Adventures Close to Home

TAKE A MINI VACATION - Most think that vacations need to involve an epic journey to a mysterious island thousands of miles away. In reality, most of us only need a few days to relax and recharge, and you don't have to break out the atlas or the big bucks to find a place to do it. Plan an overnight trip to a campsite for fishing and hiking. Take a look at Reserve America (www.reserveamerica.com) for a list of nearby sites by state, most of which are pet friendly. Are there state or amusement parks within a few hours of you? Whether you've finally been sucked in by those ads for the new "X-treme Death Coaster 5000," or were planning to visit out-of-state relatives or friends, these might be some great places to stop along the way (and staying with friends and family could take care of lodging). Don't forget the attractions already in your backyard! Take a day to check out monuments or museums, many of which are free or have discounts for military families. Also, if you're near a military installation, you can check with the Leisure Travel Services at their Community Center, who might not only have ideas for weekend getaways, but also deals.

The Roth TSP Implementation Begins

Defense Finance and Accounting Service (DFAS) began in June, the processing of Roth TSP elections for its civilian and military customers using a phased approach that will continue through October 2012.

As a new choice for retirement investment planning, the Roth TSP will allow military service members and civilian employees the option to contribute after-tax wages into TSP for the first time. Both the contributions and the earnings will be tax free when withdrawn, as long as IRS requirements are met.

Scheduled Implementation Dates

June 2012 – Marine Corps

July 2012 – Federal Civilian Employees

October 2012 – Army, Air Force, and Navy

The introduction of the Roth TSP provides service members with an additional retirement savings option in the TSP plan. It provides greater flexibility in the tax treatment of your contributions. It will allow you to make after-tax contributions to your TSP account. These Roth contributions are tax-free when withdrawn; their earnings are also tax-free (as long as certain IRS requirements are met). Service members should note that money already in a TSP account cannot be converted to a Roth account.

As with all tax matters, service members should seek the advice of a qualified tax or financial advisor for information pertaining to your specific tax situation. In the meantime, visit TSP.gov to find answers to general questions about Roth TSP.

Social Media and Military Families

The ways in which we communicate have grown by leaps and bounds in the past several years. It seems like every day a new social networking site pops up, and nobody has embraced the culture of information sharing and keeping in touch like military families. Gone are the days of losing contact with friends from duty stations around the world, or only being able to connect with a deployed service member via a handwritten letter.

Having so many choices can also be confusing. Here are our recommendations on different ways military families can use some of the popular social networking sites:

Facebook is a great way to keep in touch with old friends and connect with new people and resources before a PCS move. Keep far away family members up to date with photos of the family or use the chat feature to talk in real time.

Twitter is perfect for those who want to keep up with the daily news in their community. Follow local businesses for deals and information or news sites for quick updates. Many military installations have a presence on Twitter and it can be a great way to keep up with activities in the community

LinkedIn is a wonderful way for military spouses who are looking for employment to network. Build an online resume, make connections, and have colleagues recommend your work. Join a group with similar interests and share tips, job opportunities, and conversation.

Pinterest is the hot new social networking site that allows its users to create personalized boards or collections of information from any website on the internet. For military families on the move, this is a great way organize ideas, recipes, and inspiration in one online home.

Those are just a few of the many sites available. Many military families use and love Skype, YouTube, Google+, blogs, Flickr, Tumblr, and more!

Don't forget that military families are called to be judicious in their use of social media sites. Before getting started, or as a refresher, check out the resources below to make sure you're keeping up with best OPSEC (Operations Security) and PERSEC (Personal Security) practices:

Moving with TRICARE

Did you move this summer? Don't forget to update your TRICARE information.

1. Update your information in DEERS:

Once you have arrived at your new duty station, you should update your information in the DEERS (Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System). This action will help prevent any difficulties with TRICARE claim or payment issues that may arise because your address has changed. There are several easy ways you can update your information. You can go in person to the local military installation and stop by the ID office on base. You can call them and provide the information over the phone at the Defense Manpower Data Center Support Office at 1-800-538-9552. There is a fax option at 1-831-655-8317. You can enroll online at the Beneficiary Web Enrollment website or through the DEERS website.

You can mail your information to:

Defense Manpower Data Center Support Office
Attn: COA
400 Gigling Road
Seaside, CA 93955-6771

For additional information on updating your information in DEERS, go to : <http://tricare.mil/mybenefit/home/overview/Eligibility/DEERS>

2. Update your information with TRICARE:

Alert your TRICARE Regional Managed Care Support contractor and TRICARE Service Center (located in the military hospital or clinic or surrounding area) that you have moved and provide your new address. The TRICARE Regions are: TRICARE North, TRICARE South, TRICARE West, and TRICARE Overseas (Europe, Latin America, Canada, and Pacific). You can find your region at the <http://www.tricare.mil/> .

3. Transfer enrollment:

Once you have updated your new address in DEERS, you will need to transfer your TRICARE Prime enrollment if you want to re-enroll or enroll as a new Prime beneficiary. This can be done online at the Beneficiary Web Enrollment website: <https://www.dmdc.osd.mil/appj/bwe/indexAction.do;jsessionid=2bl2PzWDL9m1D14kbqLNjZWz7nGDKRtytI821ksslj8ITPG2WMQ!234841> click on "Get Enrollment Form," fill out the a DD Form 2876 TRICARE Prime Enrollment Application and PCM Change Form, print it out, and mail it to the address provided. Do NOT use the Disenrollment form!

Retirees may transfer their enrollment two times a year. The second transfer must be to the first TRICARE region. This option allows those retirees who have decided to live in one part of the country during the winter and reside in a different part of the country in the summer to remain current in TRICARE.

4. Medical record transfer after arriving at your new location:

If you have not done so, request to have your medical records sent to your new health care clinic. Your records can be transferred to a military hospital or clinic or a private doctor's office.

5. Medications:

If you had been receiving your medications through TRICARE's Mail Order Pharmacy, it will be important for you to contact Express Scripts, Inc. (ESI) to let them know your new address. Address changes can NOT be done online: you must contact Express Scripts directly. The best way is to call the customer service phone number at 1-877-363-1303 and advise the Patient Care Advocate of your new address and phone number. TDD/Hearing Impaired, please contact 1-877-540-6261. Even though all family members are under the same Sponsor's ID number, each eligible beneficiary must have their address and phone number changed to the new address on their individual account.

For additional information you can go to either <http://www.express-scripts.com/TRICARE/> or <http://www.tricare.mil/> .
